Erie. Six hundred dollars were by resolution appropriated out of the general road fund toward the construction of the sewer. Gen. Oviave offered a resolution that the vote appropriating the aforesaid $600, and also that appropriating $400 to the St. Clair street improvement, he reconsidered. On the motion of Mr. Hennick, the whole was referred to a select committee of five—Means. Hennick, Thayras, Santas. Winstow and Oviate.

The Council adjourned at 11 o'clock.

The only rescue to be expected could be ob tained by choosing a wife amongst the native women, and consenting to remain on the island forever. After much persuasion from the mis-sionary he accepted the latter alternative, and the holy father, according to the custom of his nation, chose a bride for the young man, and took especial care to choose a good parts-no less a one than the daughter of the chief. One thing, however, the father insisted on; the mar-Catholic rites; and at all events the bride groom should be bound by proper registers, and not be permitted to treat the sacred cero-mony with the same lightness as it is else-

It seems that Judson had passed the night in Warren and had went up on the express train leaving it at the Braceville station. After that began to look out for an opportunity of quitting the scene of his connubial felicity. Some months elapsed, however, before this opportucried a vessel in the offing. M. Malfilatre landed safe and sound at Havre only two months ago. He found that great changes had taken place in his father's household during his absence. An inheritance had fallen in-fortune had smiled most graciously upon the old man, and the son, after all his wretchedness and misery, returned to find him self the heir of wealth he had never dreamed of The first thing for a rich man in France to de is, as we all know, to provide himself with a rich wife; the father began to look about him, and having found a suitable match, the parties were straightway brought forth to be married But now arose the difficulty—young Malfila-tre could not deny his marriage at Wallis's Island by a Catholic priest, according to Cath-olic rites. The marriage was legal in every So, therefore, notice was served by a huisrie upon the "Demoiselle Suleta, falsely calling her-self Madame Malfilatre," to show cause why she should not be dispossessed of that title. Of course the whole affair was considered a mighty An ingenious machinist of our town has in-vented and will soon bring out a steam wagon, dingly; for, of course, after the delay expired of the sangune bridegroom and his rich wife, the bishop of Australia and Oceana, in whose diocese that paradise of which we have given some of the most striking traites de maurs, and in defence of morality and religion, proclaims him-self ready to become partic civile in this case, for the protection of the helpless Suleta. We may judge of the consternation thrown among the engaged for the rich marriage—the tears of the rich bride, the rayings of the rich bridegroom. The debates which are to come on directly, will be full of interest, and of warning at the same time. The case is considered one of the most curious on record, and has been complicated since the issue of the first mise on demens, by
